FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

THURSDAY, Sept. 22. The course of the stock market cast cold water upon the theory that possessed a good portion of Wall Street yesterday. that because of a supposed "contest for control" of the Union Pacific Railroad Company there would be a chance in a short time for the fortunate possessors of the shares of any of the leading railroad companies in the country to dispose of these at a large advance over their present price. Indeed, the sentiment of Wall Street veered to the opinion that the large buying of one or two stocks in the market in the last two days was nothing other than a repetition in different form of the manipulative tactics adopted last week by certain large speculators for the rise in order to cover their retreat. Support was undoubtedly lent to this judgment by the peculiar action of Southern Pacific stock. This stock was bought heavily from the opening of business, and its price was advanced more than a point; but it was speedily noticed that while the buying was going on liquidation equally heavy, though conducted with more caution, was taking place in Union Pacific stock, in which the buying yesterday centred, and that, indeed, all the active stocks, except Southern Pacific, were pressed for sale. This was a rather curious development for a market in which a variety of "corners" were about to be sprung. Suspicion over the character of yesterday's rise in stocks become general and resulted in a liquidating movement that at one time carried the price of some of the more prominent issues as low or even lower than the lowest figures touched by them in the recent decline of the market. In the afternoon business on the Stock Exchange became very dull, prices rallying slightly at times, but again falling back. At the close nearly all the active stocks, Southern Pacific included, showed round net losses As weak a stock as any, and one that seemed to display as little rallying power, was St. Paul. The Missouri Pacific shares were also sold freely, criticism concerning the increase in the Missouri Pacific's expenses in the calendar year thus far and in the small margin of earnings now shown by the company over dividends distributed being naturally of adverse nature. The United States Steel stocks, however, seemed to present a somewhat greater degree of resistance to the declining tendency than did many other shares, while shortly before the close of business Ontario and Western stock rose suddenly because of the recurrence of an old story, that if the Ontario and Western company's managers satisfactorily arrange the sale of a new bond issue a dividend upon the stock, thus dissolving the present voting trust, may become among the possibilities. The American and Consolidated Tobacco stocks and the Consolidated Tobacco 4 per cent. bonds were strong throughout the day, a circumstance which was, perhaps, related to the fact that in a short time the books of the various tobacco companies will close for the stockholders' meetings, at which the proposition regarding the readjustment of the capitalization of all these companies will be voted upon.

The total number of transactions in the stock market was less to-day than yesterday and below the average daily volume maintained in recent weeks. Perhaps the most distinctive feature of the market was its absence of commission house business after the reaction and subsequent sharp rally in prices that has just occurred. Sterling exchange broke sharply to-day, bringing talk of gold imports. Good judges, however, do not look for gold imports while money remains as cheap here as it is now. The extreme cold weather felt in this section of the country last night and to-day did not prevail, apparently, over the West. and in the grain markets the price of wheat Buffalo & Susquehanna Railroad Company. and corn weakened. Later on, however. wheat rose and closed at a net gain beca of rumors of cold rains in the Northwest
